REGULATIONS.

By virtue of the authority conferred upon me by an Act entitled "An Act to Regulate Chinese Immigration," approved December 20, 1887, I hereby publish by and with the consent of the Cabinet in Council, the following Regulations:

1. Each application by a Chinese resident in this Kingdom for a permit to enter the Kingdom shall be accompanied by the applicant's receipt for taxes for the current year; his passport ticket; his Customs House pass; duplicate copies of photographs showing full face and profile views of the applicant; and a fee of five dollars. And such applicant shall make it appear to the satisfaction of the Minister of Foreign Affairs that he has resided within the Kingdom for two years, and that he is not a vagrant, criminal, professional beggar, user of opium, or one likely to become a charge upon the country.

2. Applications for permits to be issued to Chinese women, children and families under Section 6 of the said Act, must be accompanied by a certificate that the woman is of good character, or any the wives of Chinese residents in the Kingdom, or that said children or families are such as permits are provided for in said Section 6.

3. Section 7 of the said Act is as follows: "All permits issued under the provisions of this Act are personal and not transferable, and a transfer or attempted transfer shall be deemed to be a cancellation and a forfeiture; and the person making or attempting to make such transfer, and any person aiding or abetting him in so doing, shall be liable, on conviction, to a penalty of Two Hundred Dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months at hard labor."

One of the best things that the extra session of the present Legislature did was to pass the law restricting the travel of Chinese to and from this Kingdom. The salient points of this measure are embodied in the "Regulations" just issued by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, with the concurrence of the Cabinet. Any Chinese resident applying for a permit to return to this country must present his tax receipt, passenger ticket, passport, and duplicate copies of face and profile photographs, besides paying a fee of five dollars. The applicant must also show that he has resided in the Kingdom two years, and is not a vagrant, criminal, professional beggar, user of opium, or a person likely to become a charge upon the country.

Women for whom permits are sought must be proved to be of good character, or the wives of Chinese living in this Kingdom. Provision is made for the admission without permits of wives of Chinese residents and their children under fourteen years of age, but it must be shown that women or children are such as the law allows.

All permits issued under the provisions of this Act, Section 7 reads, "are personal and not transferable, and a transfer or attempted transfer shall be deemed to be a cancellation and a forfeiture; and the person making or attempting to make such transfer, and any person aiding or abetting him in so doing, shall be liable, on conviction, to a penalty of Two Hundred Dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months at hard labor."

These regulations, if strictly carried out, ought at the very least to be a check upon Chinese ascendancy. Their enforcement should be accompanied by a working of the Vagrancy Act for all that it is worth. Making the best of both measures is what the people have a right to expect, and will be a beginning of the more radical policy of exclusion of Mongolians to which the nation must in self-preservation eventually come. This Kingdom will be in a position of winning American sympathy so much valued, if it follows the leading of the United States in this matter as nearly as possible. That nation is about securing Mongolian coolie exclusion by formal convention with the Chinese Empire. Should this project be consummated, the hands of the Hawaiian Government will be strengthened.

A CORRESPONDENT, "Independent," arraigns in the Bulletin all those who deemed that the Constitution placed upon the King's exercise of the veto power the restraint of Ministerial advice. "They gave the King the veto power," he says, "let them not risk the imputation of inconsistency and insincerity by whiffing evasions to escape the consequences of the enactments they themselves proposed and decreed."

Does "Independent" regard the desire of the Reform party that the constitutional requirement of Article 78 be applied, unless in the Constitution it is "otherwise expressed," to the exercise by the King of constitutional powers, as a "whiffing evasion"? If so, he is not a safe guide in constitutional matters. That the four Judges who held that the veto did not require such advice were, during the session of the Legislature, unable to agree on that view, and thought the matter so doubtful that they called on the members of the bar for opinions concerning it, ought of itself to show "Independent" that there was no trifling in claiming that the advice was required by law.

The four Judges say in their opinion: "Since the 78th Article contains the words, 'unless otherwise expressed,' therefore any act of the King which does not, by force of the article which defines the act, require the consent of the Cabinet, is excepted from the general rule laid down in Article 78."

They also consider that the veto power requires personal deliberation and volition, and is included among the King's legislative functions as a branch of the legislative power, while they regard the Cabinet's authority to advise him as confined to executive matters, because the Constitution, in Article 41, makes them his advisers in executive matters.

But every constitutional power of the King requires for its exercise his personal deliberation and volition, and no article in the Constitution, outside of Article 78, expressly requires the consent of the Cabinet for the exercise by the King of any power given to him under the Constitution. His power, given in Article 37, to declare martial law, which is the highest exercise of legislative functions and is independent either of Privy Council or Legislature, by the foregoing reasoning is not subjected to Cabinet advice.

It is generally considered by the people of this country, that Ministerial supervision over the public acts of the sovereign, subject to subsequent legislative approval, is no less proper and necessary here than it is in England. And if amendments to cover that ground are needed, they will in due time be made.

There would seem to have been a bearding up of the rivalry between the California and American Sugar Refineries. San Francisco papers have many columns, day after day, showing how little definite information the reporters could obtain from those in a position to know the facts.

Head men of the American were induced to speak of Col. Spreckels in a rather high-tempered way, and the Colonel was made to retort with contemptuous references to the American Refinery. Yet not a scintilla of evidence is adduced to prove that either refinery was coquetting with the Eastern Sugar Trust, although most of the combined journalistic efforts were evidently set going for no other purpose than to implicate the American in such a naughty flirtation. Our San Francisco correspondent was carried away by some influence to join in the hunt, with the result that about half a column of his last letter had to be suppressed. The part rejected figured up the situation in a manner calculated to put the Hawaiian planters interested in the American Refinery in a lugubrious light, while his estimates were widely different from those of sugar authorities here as well as the world over, being well adapted though of course not designed to "bear" the market. Then a special correspondent of the Bulletin, in a stream of venomous verbiage, attacked the Hawaiian shareholders of the American most outrageously. That production was indeed so overdone, and its refrain was such stale music round the street corners of Honolulu and in the columns of the Advertiser, that it nauseated its readers without satisfying their intelligence. The writer had to admit that the points he most zealously attempted to make were without any known basis in fact. His gall and wormwood effusion was, in short, one of the most spiteful and impertinent interferences with private affairs that ever saw the light. Similar vicious attacks on the American Refinery and its Hawaiian shareholders recur to memory as having been made periodically ever since the reconstruction of the corporation, but every time have been proved utterly groundless and formulated out of slanders made from the whole cloth.

It is therefore probable that this latest tempest in a teapot will be found to have originated in similar base imaginings. All that is clear now is that there is a war in prices between the two refineries, before engaging in which there is no reason to doubt that the American Refinery people counted the cost. At all events the Hawaiian planters connected with that establishment may be deemed able to know and do their own business without the help of irresponsible scribblers in San Francisco.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The New York Sun remarks that it is understood that the Civil Service Reformers will shortly meet to organize a Check Trust.

A COMPANY for the cultivation of coffee by the most approved methods is projected. It is to be hoped it will be floated, making one important addition to profitable domestic industries.

KING ORMO of Bavaria, it is to be feared, is going the way of his late insane brother and predecessor. He has become suspicious of his attendants, refuses to eat or drink, and is dying fast.

A DREADFUL state of affairs exists in West Virginia, owing to a war of extermination between the McCoy and Hatfields. It is in pursuance of a feud dating "before the war," and some of the deeds of blood would disgrace Bashi-Bazouks.

JAMES D. LEARY of New York, noted as owner of the "big raft" that got lost, is going to build a ship, over fifty feet longer than the raft, for carrying timber. It will be built in Nova Scotia, and have six huge masts, schooner rigged and with square sails.

Three times in one article the Bulletin says that the King is responsible to the people. Unless it can show how the people can hold the King to account short of revolutionary methods, our contemporary must be set down as having adopted a decidedly rough sentiment.

As exchange says that of the 90,803 farms in Michigan, 43,079 are mortgaged for 60 per cent. of their value. Excessive freights charged by the railroads for transporting the crops, together with war taxes on all that the farmer buys, will doubtless account for much of this bad showing.

Unless the small-pox epidemic of San Francisco has shown no sign of diminution, it might be well for the Board of Health to consider whether, in the case of future arrivals, it would not be sufficient to require passengers to report themselves at intervals to a medical agent of the Board until the eighteen days be elapsed.

A ST. AUGUSTINE (Fla.) telegram of January 7th contains the following interesting information: "The turbine water wheel connected with the mammoth artesian well in the rear of the Prince de Leon was put in operation to day. The trial resulted very satisfactorily, the great wheel making 850 revolutions per minute, and successfully demonstrating that the power afforded by artesian wells can be practically utilized. The wheel will be used for running the dynamo and for other purposes about the hotel."

MR. A. D. BOLSTER has called at the Gazette office, and as the guard who had charge of Messrs. Coleman, Flynn and Forman, while in quarantine at Waikiki, wishes a denial made of his having received any bribe from them, or that they were permitted to leave the quarantined premises at any time until they returned to the steamship Australia, on her departure for San Francisco. He admits, however, that they may possibly have gone out during the night, when he was asleep, and consequently when no guard was on duty. Still, he does not know of their having been absent from the quarantined premises while he had charge there.

Tax British Government sent a military expedition to the Island of Lewis, Scotland, to suppress the riots of distressed crofters. A number of the rioters were taken to Edinburgh, where on trial a jury acquitted them. Troops were still quartered in Lewis at the date of the above news, for the same dispatch containing the latter stated that the soldiers were hastening to the relief of the police, who had been routed in the attempt to arrest cotiers for destroying fences of sheep farms. It is a pity if the British Government cannot find a better remedy than rigorous repression for its rightly discontented tenant farmers, when it has spent so many millions in giving and securing freedom for oppressed negroes.

MR. G. D. GILMAN, of Boston, lately delivered an interesting lecture on the Hawaiian Islands, profusely illustrated by the stereopticon, before a large audience in the Boston Y. M. C. A. hall. Public buildings, ancient grass houses, canoes, inter-island steamers, portraits of the royal family, landscapes, surf riding, the Lord's prayer in Hawaiian and volcano views were represented on the canvas. A telephone pole in one of the views led the lecturer to state the fact that Honolulu had more telephone subscribers in proportion to her inhabitants than any city except one in America. The report in a Boston paper says, "the riding dresses of the ladies showed common sense which is rarely shown in this country on like occasions."

COL. C. H. JONES, of the Jacksonville (Fla.) Times-Union, in a paper read before the American National Publishers' Association, at Indianapolis, stated that the newspapers of the United States are enjoying the cheapest and most efficient telegraph service of any newspapers in the world. It was cheaper by from one-fifth to one-half than the telegraph press rate in England, where it was 25 cents for 75 words during the day and 100 words at night. These comparisons apply to the service of the Press Association, the cost of special telegraph service in the United States being half a cent per word and in Great Britain a third of a cent. Distances were, however, very much greater on an average in the United States than in England. The above figures are worth keeping in mind against the introduction of the telegraph to these Islands.

AFTER THE QUARANTINE.

How Three Jovial Frisco Men Made the Best of a Quarantined Visit.

The San Francisco Examiner of February 10th, has a humorous account of the supposed hardships endured by Messrs. J. V. Coleman, J. Flynn and Sands W. Forman, three notable San Franciscans, during their recent quarantine in this city. While the Examiner's account is very funny reading as a piece of fiction, it may help our big contemporary over the shark pond to "point a moral and adorn a tale" to be informed exactly how the three gentlemen observed or rather skipped the quarantine embargo. The distinguished trio were quarantined in a house at Waikiki, the prettiest and most salubrious spot in the Hawaiian Islands or in the world for that matter, Menlo Park to the contrary notwithstanding. They observed the quarantine as became good citizens of Uncle Sam's dominions, with scrupulous and exemplary fidelity during the day, but when the shades of evening began to throw their pall over Waikiki, the spirit of Liberty seized upon the quarantined party and they actually went forth into the infected air, hired carriages, rolled through the city after prancing steeds, taking in through the openings of their chariots all the sights and wonders of the "land of royalty and rainbows" that were available by the illumination of the stars aided by extinguished street lamps and unlighted electric apparatus. But they did not ride like Lohinvar so as to stay not for brake and stop not for stone, for they did stop at sundry places.

One evening was spent at Emma Square, where the Royal Hawaiian Band was giving one of its open-air concerts and filling all surrounding space with the plaintive moles of the Hawaiians and other harmonies of exquisite beauty, to the supreme delight of the quarantined party as well as the rest of the crowd. One evening was spent at a billiard saloon, where they enjoyed themselves as only San Franciscans can when on an outing. Every evening some new expedition was arranged and some new resort reached.

Another bit of these gentlemen's experience is reported to have been a visit to a jolly hula-hula, which doubtless they will be fully able to describe in delectable terms for the edification of the Examiner's readers.

On Sunday, a gunning party went forth for game, the shooters being the quarantined trio and a number of officials. While on one of their excursions, one of the party was accosted with the enquiry if he was not one of the quarantined passengers, to which, knowing it was not Washington's birthday, he answered that he guessed not, but had just come down from one of the windward ports.

Altogether Messrs. Coleman, Flynn and Forman managed to have more of their own way than is indicated in the report clicked into the Examiner office.

One of the trio when questioned as to how they managed from time to time to slip the quarantine cables, said that a gold piece, passed into the hands of the guard, arranged that part of the difficulty. A government official is said to have been a companion of the adventurous gentlemen in their nocturnal wanderings. Doubtless they will startle the literary world with accounts of the experiences of their quarantined escapades in the flowery land.
